

Short Summary

Sometimes a dream is all you need to overcome the devastating adversity in the mean streets of Baltimore. Through all the pain, failure, rejection, loss, disrespect, and heartbreak we made a commitment to fight for your dreams. This is Willie "The BAM" Johnson's story about being inspired by Bruce Lee and one day achieving the dream of working side by side with Shannon Lee (Bruce Lee's daughter) and some of the world's greatest martial artists on television show WMAC Masters.

Be inspired to live your dreams, learn the steps to act today, and see vintage never-before-seen content for this historic documentary.

What We Need & What You Get

This documentary is in production and needs your contributions to make our dream a reality! The community dojo offers scholarships to underserved youth. It's self-supported with contributions through demonstrations, food drives, and community events—driven to heal the violence in our community amongst the youth. We are striving to offer 1 million scholarships for in-person and virtual training.

Our goal is to launch more programs, like our satellite Dunbar High School program in Baltimore, MD, and create a documentary that will touch lives for years to come!

The Impact

Dream it. Write out your goals. Plan it. Take action. Manifest it.

In life, you can't accelerate until you are given an opportunity to participate. Help us open the door and provide an opportunity to a population who might not get a chance otherwise. Join us for the Loyal Justice movie launch that will help provide quality martial arts training for underserved youth in our community.
